(iii) An argument. The argument may be preceded by a summary. The argument must be divided into sections separately treating each issue and must set forth plaintiff's contentions relating to the issues presented and reasons for those contentions. Each contention must be supported by specific reference to the portion of the federal court record relied upon and by citations to statutes, regulations and cases supporting plaintiff's position. Cases from other districts and circuits should be cited only in conjunction with relevant cases from this jurisdiction or if authority on point from this jurisdiction does not exist. Citations to unreported district court opinions must be accompanied by a copy of the opinion. If plaintiff has moved for remand to the Secretary for further proceedings, the argument in support must set forth good cause for remand. Furthermore, if the remand is for the purpose of taking additional evidence, plaintiff must attach that evidence to the brief; if the evidence is in the form of a consultative examination sought at government expense, plaintiff must proffer the nature of the evidence counsel believes will be obtained.

(iv) A short conclusion stating the relief sought.

(b) The issues before the court are limited to the exact issues properly raised in the briefs. Any issue raised in the briefs but not discussed at oral argument, if one is held, will be deemed abandoned.

(c) Within 30 days after service of plaintiff's brief, defendant must serve and file a brief which responds specifically to each issue raised by plaintiff. Defendant's brief must conform to the requirements set forth above for plaintiff's brief, except that a statement of the issues and a statement of the case need not be made unless defendant is dissatisfied with plaintiff's statement.
